The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1- 4, 7, 10, 11, 16, 17, 19-22, 24, 27-29, 31-33, 37, 39 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Sandegren '930.

Sandegren's invention provides a technique for notifying mobile users of various status conditions associated with other mobile users, col. 1, lines 65-67. Sandegren discloses a system that will notify a 1st user, applicant's communication sender, of a mobile communication device about the status of other users in a mobile communication system, Abstract – 1st sentence. Sandegren's system sends a signal from a mobile communication device (the mobile device of the 1st user) to a service node (SN), Abstract – 2nd sentence. A list is stored at the SN of the status of other users that the 1st user desires to know the status of, 3rd sentence – Abstract. The status of each of the other users, i.e., other than the 1st user/sender, is then determined and then transmitted from the SN to the 1st user's mobile device, Abstract-4th sentence. The signal from the mobile device (of the 1st user/sender) to the SN is generated in response to the mobile device being powered on.

For claims 2 & 3, Sandegren discloses in the last sentence of the Abstract that the SN is an HLR. Regarding claim 7, Sandegren discloses @ col. 6, lines 18 et seq that one of the status changes is notification of the mobile device being off, and in lines 17 discloses that display portion 103 will indicate this to the user. For claim 19, Sandegren discloses SMS, cols. 1 & 7, lines 25-30 & 20-25. Pertaining to claim 17, see Fig. 1a.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 5, 6, 8, 9, 12-15, 18, 23, 25, 26, 30, 34, 35, 36, and 38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sandegren '930.

Concerning claims 5 & 6, with Sandegren's disclosure in col. 1, lines 65-67, of various status conditions of other mobile users, and in col. 7, lines 3 et seq, that the techniques that Sandegren has disclosed may be applied to implement a number of different variations of WOLN services. A person with ordinary skill in the cellular communications art, with this disclosure in front of them, would have readily concluded that another notification variation to be given to a sender in this type of system would be one indicating that another user is "out of transmission range" would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in this art because of Sandegren's disclosure in cols. 1 & 7 noted supra. For claim 19, with Sandegren's disclosure of "mobile communication devices," a person possessing ordinary skill in the art would quickly recognize that a pager fits into that mobile/wireless category.
